MARMARA UNIVERSITY
Faculty of Political Science
Department of International Relations

THE DEPARTMENT of INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS offers a limited numbers of internships to students of politics and international relations, and social sciences, which can be undertaken during the academic semester. Through our internships we aim to provide students with the best possible insights into the scientific work and research as well as academic life. The specific arrangement of each internship will be primarily determined by the department's current workload and the student's respective qualifications and interests. Our internships are 20 weeks long and free of charge. Unfortunately, the department cannot offer any financial remuneration to interns. Our interns are expected to finance their internships themselves and to also arrange their own accommodation in Istanbul for the duration of their internships.

Requirements:

- enrolled at a university during the internship (BA, MA or MS)
- interest in the social, political, and economic issues and world politics in general
- good level of English
- good computer skills (e.g. word processing and production of tables)

Possible duties:

- research and analysis (under guidance of an department scholar)
- assisting with the preparation of workshops, conferences, and meetings
- carrying out preliminary work for research projects and our Research Programs
- contributing to scientific articles (e.g. Rising Powers Quarterly)
- translating texts

Written applications must be submitted in English no later than four months before the desired internship start date and should include:

- An informal covering letter detailing your motivation for wanting to undertake an internship at the department.
