

Junior EU Political Consultant

Job Description:

Savion Ray is looking for talented students in their final year of studies, interested in an internship in an international environment with a strong interest in creative and digital communications. You will be involved in both public affairs and communication work and support projects in one or more of Savion Ray's various client practices. This position is based in Brussels, Belgium.

This is not a position where you will have ample time to observe colleagues' work before you get a project. You will be working on real client briefs from day one, conducting broad research and intelligence assignments. Specific responsibilities may include internet research, mailing coordination, database development, and follow-up for client events (media or participants). You will learn by doing from a small but capable team. You will be interacting with and learning from everyone from juniors to management.

We will expect that you listen and understand how our company and clients work. At the same time, we will give you space to be yourself and express your awesome creativity, and support clients' vision. We strongly believe conceptual and creative thinking makes ideas stand out and we give tender love and care for those seeds to grow.

Your main tasks will be:

- Monitor EU policy and regulatory developments impacting relevant sectors;
- Support the implementation of Public Affairs activities for our clients;
- Events attendance and reporting;

- Online research and analysis to understand client landscapes;
- Write press releases and feature articles for dissemination through print media;
- Conduct audits and stakeholder mapping;
- Support media relations activities (e.g. producing media lists);
- Support client event organization (e.g invitation, logistics);
- General admin support tasks (e.g. update database).

Requirements:

- Knowledge of public relations, community relations, advertising, and journalism including media technical requirements and practices;
- Knowledge of the practices and techniques of oral communications in developing and presenting briefings to print and broadcast media;
- Good knowledge of the EU decision making process;
- Excellent writing, editing, and proofreading skills;
- Strong research abilities and analytical skills;
- Good social and organizational skills;
- Strong presentation and communication skills, including social media;
- Fast learner, autonomous, confident, positive, good diplomatic skills;
- Degree in European Studies, Political Science and International Relations, or related field.
- Degree in Journalism, Marketing is an asset.

What we offer:

- International team;
- Flexible working time;
- Office in the heart of Brussels;
- Direct feedback from management and autonomy.

About Savion Ray

Savion Ray is a communications agency working with some of the largest advocacy groups in Brussels. We make policy challenges accessible and visible in the digital space and communicate complex technical issues in an understandable way.

Interested candidates should email their CV and samples of their work to recruitment@savionray.com by 16 April 2023. This position has 2 possible starting dates: June or October. Please indicate in your application what is your preferred starting month.

